LODI ACADEMY

11/11/2022

November 18 is Career Day, where presenters are brought in to speak to our students about potential work they could pursue after high school. This year, 14 presenters will come to the Lodi Academy campus to speak to our students. These presenters will talk about careers in agriculture management, computer engineering, counseling, dentistry and endodontics, education, heating and air conditioning services, law enforcement, as well as numerous careers around medicine. These presenters come from our local Lodi community, and extend to Utah and Washington D.C. - we are blessed to have such generous and committed speakers.

This year we are especially excited for Career Day as half of our presenters are alumni. Russ Alway, Luke Mann, Julie Mertz, Brandon Nash, Derek Sakata, Laura Rodgers Schmidt, and Sarah Stockton will all return home to pass along their collective wisdom to the next generation of students being trained to serve their communities through their talents and careers.

Our schedule will start with a keynote address at 8:30 from Dr. Brandon Nash, speaking about lessons he learned as he searched for his current career. This talk will be helpful to many students as they currently try to navigate through these waters of future uncertainty. Dr. Nash will share his powerful story on the steps and stages he took along the way to his eventual career choice of dentistry, and remind students it is okay to not have the rest of their lives figured out right now.

This year will have students from Lodi SDA Elementary 8th grade, and seniors from neighboring Jim Elliot High School in attendance. If you know of an 8th-12th grade student who could benefit from attending this year's Career Day, call the office and have them register to be a part of the event.
